Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly

The Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly is a publication of the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society (PCAS), which was organized in 1961. PCAS is an avocational group originally founded to study and to preserve the anthropological and archaeological history of the original inhabitants of Orange County, California, and adjacent areas. The Publications Committee invites the submittal of original contributions dealing with regional history and prehistory. Although PCAS is especially interested in reports which shed further light on the early inhabitants of coastal southern California, it is always interested in reports on the wider Pacific Coast region.

Information about subscriptions to the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly and the PCAS Newsletter is available online at www.pcas.org. About the Authors

Joe Cramer, MA and MFA, received his formal education in art at California State University, Fullerton, with a concentrated area of study in ceramic sculpture. He currently teaches ceramic art classes at Menifee Valley College and Rio Hondo College. Since 1982, he has enjoyed working in his spare time as an illustrator of academic articles, books, and associated materials for southern California archaeologists and institutions.

Henry Koerper, Ph.D., received a BA (1965) and an MA (1968) from UC Davis, and he earned a Ph.D. in anthropology at UC Riverside in 1981. His varied employments have included: CDF firefighter; USFS fire suppression field and laboratory researcher; California Army National Guard explosives technician; archaeological field excavator (e.g., Old Sacramento Project, Prescott College Black Mesa Project); Peace Corps teacher and athletic coach (Voi Harambee High School, Kenya); college anthropology professor (Chapman College [5 years] and Cypress Community College [30 years]); and archaeological consultant to several southern California CRM firms. Semi-retirement allows Dr. Koerper time to help produce the PCAS Quarterly.

Mark Q. Sutton, Ph.D., began his career in anthropology in 1968. While still in high school, he took advantage of the opportunity to participate in archaeological excavations conducted by the local community college. He went on to earn a BA (1972), an MA (1977), and a Ph.D. (1987) in anthropology. He has worked as an archaeologist for the US Air Force, the US Bureau of Land Management, and various private consulting firms, and he has taught at a number of community colleges and universities. He taught at California State University, Bakersfield, from 1987 to 2007, where he retired as emeritus professor of anthropology. He now works for Statistical Research, Inc. in San Diego. From 1986 to 2000, Dr. Sutton served as the editor of the Journal of California and Great Basin Anthropology. Dr. Sutton has investigated hunter-gatherer adaptations to arid environments, entomophagy, prehistoric diet and technology, optimal foraging theory, and regional culture histories. Dr. Sutton has worked at more than 120 sites in western North America, has presented more than 120 papers at professional meetings, and has authored more than 170 books, monographs, and papers on archaeology and anthropology, including several articles in recent issues of the Pacific Coast Archaeological Society Quarterly.
